gator staff

"excuse me please, I was wondering if you could give me some information" . . . "ugh!" always there standing on your toes to check on this copy or that picture or whether everything is straight on your page or picture. sorry, but that is what makes a good yearbook and a good yearbook is what we have strived for throughout this year. It has been a new year for us, full of fun and full of changes: a new sponsor, a new staff, a new feeling and most important . . . new ideas. from celebrating birthdays with a party every month or so. to staying after school to meet those crazy deadlines . . . we have cherished and enjoyed every minute of it. and now, as we write and finish our last pages for this year, our only regret is the long, but short year and that everyone of our ideas could not be used. after all, there will be many more yearbooks to follow this. many more people, and many more doors to be opened. ideas can be preserved, as we have preserved our own.

marching season introduced the 1972-73 gator marching band. they performed during pep-rallies for the student body and at halftime at each football game. other marching activities included a trip to the astrodome where they marched in the band day activities with several other bands directed by woody herman. they also marched in the la marque band festival in october. finishing marching season successfully, they went to u.i.l. marching contest at alvin in november and received a first division rating for their performance.

concert season split the band into two groups: the concert and symphonic bands. in district, region, area, and state band and/or orchestra competition, several students were chosen to play in these bands. twenty-six students placed in the district band, twenty-one in the region band, five in area, four in the all state band, seven in the region orchestra and three in the all state orchestra. in february, individual and miscellaneous group effort won a hundred and twenty-four medals for both bands at u.i.l. as the contest date neared, the band held clinics to prepare themselves.

upon attending u.i.l. concert and sight-reading contest in april, both bands received first division ratings in concert and sight-reading. these ratings qualified the band for a sweepstakes trophy. the biggest event of the year was a chartered trip to six flags over texas in dallas where they participated in the six flags' music festival. all money made during the year went to the financing of the trip. upon returning, a banquet was given to honor the band students.
